

North Shore Thirty-Something Women's Soccer League (NSTSWSL)

Code of Conduct*

The goals of the NSTSWSL are;

- to provide fun, develop fitness and promote friendship for women over the age of thirty (30) through the game of soccer
- to promote player safety, courtesy and fairness in a non-competitive environment
- to safeguard the interests of teams comprising the league; and
- to facilitate active participation by women over thirty (30) in the game of soccer

In order to ensure that these goals are achieved;

- FIFA Rules apply in all games with the exception of;
 - No slide tackles
 - No contact with the goalkeeper
- Players should make their best effort to attend scheduled practices and games, and should inform the team captain, coach or manager of expected absences as soon as possible.
- Players must show respect to other players, coaches and officials, both on and off the field, including at practice, during meetings, and through e-mail communications.
- Provided a player is prepared to play any position other than the goalkeeper, a team must give all players equal playing time at each game unless a player requests less.
- Players are encouraged to work collaboratively with their teammates to resolve internal team issues. Where needed, the President and/or Vice-President are available on a confidential basis to assist players and/or team management.

*The language in this Code of Conduct is based on the North Shore Thirty-Something Women's Soccer League's Constitution. For further reference please view the Constitution posted on the League's website.
